	Key Features: During their first session, each student takes LevelSet – an online reading placement test which results in a Lexile and reading level for each student. (Another version of the test is administered halfway through the academic or program year, and then again on the last day of sessions, as a summative assessment and measure of program success.) Once they have been placed in the program, students follow a simple, five-step process that improves vocabulary, comprehension and reading fluency, as well as writing and technology skills. Each of these five steps is based on best practices evolved out of decades of research. They are: Step 1. Set a schema. Step 2. Read for information. Step 3. Demonstrate mastery. Step 4. Construct meaning. Step 5. Form an opinion. S Includes a teacher and administrator version with a variety of reporting and lesson planning features.

	Note: Comprehension based Intervention. Must have Teacher Edition to implement program. Correlation to entire set. Committee feels separate elements needs to be purchased together as a complete set. Key Features: Literacy Navigator is designed to help students whose reading abilities are “at” or “almost at” grade level. It is for those students who are not strong comprehenders and who, therefore, struggle to read informational text and have problems on state reading tests. Literacy Navigator is a modular supplementary intervention that can be used 1) during school hours, 2) in after-school or weekend programs, or 3) during summer school. It is designed to help students develop the reading comprehension skills they need to navigate the texts used in their content-area courses and measured by high-stakes reading assessments. Literacy Navigator's approach targets students, including English language learners, who are comfortable with social language or who are adequate readers of literary text but struggle to comprehend content-area text.

	Key Features: The complexity and difficulty of this course's content are carefully matched to the standards, students' abilities and grade level, and time periods available for teaching. The content of the three units—Mysteries and Investigations, The Civil Rights Movement, and Planet Earth—is appropriate to the age and maturity level of the intended students. The topic of mysteries and investigations has proven to have intrinsic interest for 6th- and 7th-grade students and provides an effective way to engage them in learning the nature of and the distinctions between fiction and non-fiction. The Civil Rights Movement and Planet Earth address middle-grades' history and science topics respectively and help students relate their language and literacy learning to other content studies.

	Note: Intervention program for comprehension. Recommended as “Resource Only” for Language Arts, Part I: Reading. Key Features: The Reading Assistant is built around a responsive, speech-recognition based technology that literally "listens" to students as they read and provides real-time audio support when they struggle. A contextual Spanish-enabled vocabulary tool enables students to look up unfamiliar words and quizzes, both in-context and at end-of-text, assess comprehension. Students receive feedback on words needing further review and are encouraged to re-read the passage to develop reading fluency skills as they strive to meet the stated goal for that passage. The Reading Assistant also compiles records of fluency, comprehension, and specific difficulties, and also saves the reading session audio. Students can listen to the playback of their reading while attending to words identified as needing further review. Teachers and School Administrators can log in and measure fluency, vocabulary and comprehension growth at a student, class, school or district level and can listen to the audio of each and every reading session.

	Note: Comprehensive Intervention Program according to the five key components. Key Features: This is a comprehensive intervention program for students reading two grades below level. This Intervention program is designed to accelerate instruction including a plan to exit students from the programs. Reading Triumphs Intervention Program for Grade 3 provides explicit instruction for tested skills, multiple practices with application opportunities, and assessment tools that provide the necessary data to drive instruction. Reading Triumphs’ explicit skill instruction for tested skills include highly-scaffolded lessons using the I Do/We Do/You Do Routine. Each lesson begins with the teacher explicitly teaching and modeling the skill (I Do). The teacher then leads the students through a highly-structured and guided practice session using the skill (We Do). Then students are offered practice opportunities to apply the skill on their own (You Do).

	Note: Comprehensive Intervention Program according to the five key components..
	Key Features: This is a comprehensive intervention program for students reading two grades below level. This Intervention program is designed to accelerate instruction including a plan to exit students from the programs. Reading Triumphs Intervention Program for Grade 3 provides explicit instruction for tested skills, multiple practices with application opportunities, and assessment tools that provide the necessary data to drive instruction. Reading Triumphs' explicit skill instruction for tested skills include highly-scaffolded lessons using the I Do/We Do/You Do Routine. Each lesson begins with the teacher explicitly teaching and modeling the skill (I Do). The teacher then leads the students through a highly-structured and guided practice session using the skill (We Do). Then students are offered practice opportunities to apply the skill on their own (You Do).

Students are taught at their instructional level. Decoding programs are appropriate for students who do not read accurately, whose oral reading is choppy and plodding, as well as for less fluent readers who cannot focus their attention on what text means. Comprehension programs are appropriate for students who need to develop vocabulary, background information, and reasoning skills that are the foundation of comprehension. Fully integrated assessments monitor progress and guide movement through the program. Professional Development can be accessed at any time with SRA Teaching Tutor CD-ROM.

	Note: Comprehensive intervention program that is skills based. Requires Teacher's editions for implementation. Correlation to teacher editions. Content Standards correlations for Grade 4 = 86%, Grade 5 = 82%, Grade 6 = 80%, Grade 7 = 78%, Grade 8 = 68%. Key Features: Students are given the Comprehension Placement Assessment to determine their starting levels. The Fluency Strand develops students' fluency through guided practice, repeated readings, and independent reading. Fast Track is designed to accelerate delayed readers to grade-level proficiency and standards as quickly as possible by helping the teacher accurately assess student needs and then deliver intensive, targeted instruction.
